Welcome to SCL's Public network. As with all public networks, you are at risk of having your information viewed by others via malicious software.

SCL assumes no responsibility for the risks associated with your use of this resource.

Staff and patrons at Strathcona County Library share the responsibility of maintaining a safe, welcoming environment free from discrimination and harassment. When you access the Internet at SCL, we ask that you act in a responsible manner that respects the rights and privacy of others, including minors sharing the public space and follow our Patron Code of Conduct.

When accessing this public resource you are subject to all associated federal, provincial and municipal legislation. This includes the provisions of Canada's Criminal Code regarding:

- Making sexually explicit materials visible to minors;
- Child pornography;
- The display or dissemination of hate literature;
- The display or dissemination of illicit drug literature;
- Obscenity;
- Fraud;
- Invasion of privacy;
- Harassment, libel, or slander (which includes online cyber-bullying).

If you violate any of the rules expressed above or in our Patron Code of Conduct you may be asked to move to a different computer, barred from using our computers, or asked to leave the library.
